

John Guess

Senior Managing Consultant
PFM Financial Advisors LLC

John Guess IV is a native Houstonian born in the heart of southwest Houston. John is a senior management consultant for PFM Financial Advisors LLC. He advises municipalities such as city governments, school districts, and higher education clients, to name a few. In his position, John is passionate about public service and sits on several boards which include the Houston Museum of African American Culture, Leadership Houston, YMCA Houston, Career Gear and the National Association of Security Professional for Young Professionals.

John previously worked for Houston City Controller Chris Brown, where he focused on finance. He oversaw all activities in the treasury department which was responsible for overseeing the city's $5.6 billion dollar budget. Throughout his career, he has been the recipient of many awards and recognitions within his career in public administration and finance. John enjoys speaking with young professionals and acting as a mentor to youth in the Houston community and is an active member of the Alpha Eta Lambda Chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity Incorporated in Houston.

In addition to his many accomplishments, John is also a past recipient of the Jesse H. Jones School of Business 40 under 40 award from Texas Southern University. When he is not working to better his community, he can be found volunteering his time with organizations such as Camp We All for children with disabilities, and most recently, Big Brothers, Big Sisters.
